Calling all chickies back to the nest...

Just a reminder that our online preschool programme is reaching its end this week Friday. We are really excited to welcome all our little people (Grade RRR-R) back on Monday (3 August). The playground is yours for the taking, as all the other grades are not back for another whole week yet!

Please let us know if you do not want your little one to play on the playgrounds - this can be arranged.

When considering the international and national findings on the carrying and transmission of CoVid by pre-schoolers, we would like to reassure you that the statistics are entirely in your favour. Little people are the safest and least-likely CoVid germ sufferers and transmitters amongst us.

We are sure that you agree with us that it is time for us to get them back on track emotionally, socially and academically. We are really concerned that the long periods of isolation are extremely damaging to our little pupils. So parents... IT IS TIME! 😊

As an extra incentive, we would strongly encourage you to allow your child to settle in back with us next week before we resume school-readiness testing (Grade RR and R). This testing procedure is a compulsory requirement for your child's progression to the next grade. Your child has to attend school for this testing should you wish for him/her to remain enrolled for 2021. We will be testing the children as soon as we feel they are relaxed.

We also have a fun show planned for our pupils on Friday (7 August). Grow@Eduplus has agreed to repeat their show several times so that our pre-schoolers can maintain social distancing in the hall, and still have the benefit of educational fun.

Our P=PARTY day has been postponed!

Our planned P=Party day has been postponed to the 14th of August.

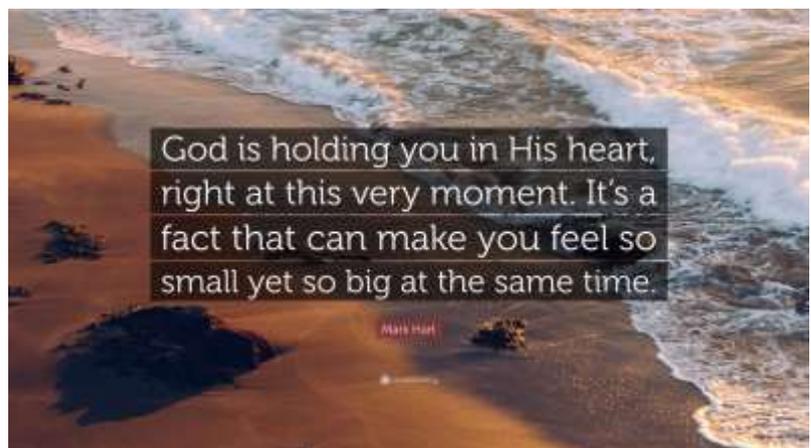

We know that several little people were very disappointed that this day did not materialise. Please reassure them that we have not forgotten and the fun is simply being delayed a bit.

Prayerfully

What Sets Us Apart?

We begin our process with an academic assessment, with the aim of understanding the student wholly and getting a full picture of their academic standing up to that point, and we design a program around their specific educational needs.

We believe in the age-old adage "it takes a village" – that means keeping an open line of communication with teachers, parents, au pairs and educational psychologists, and take an all-round approach to ensure the student's academic success.

We acknowledge that children are as unique as their fingerprints, and they all learn in different ways. That is why we are committed to understanding how the child learns, and adapting our teaching style accordingly.

We don't just teach the material. As part of our program, we teach the student study skills, time management and exam technique, so that as they progress, they become more independent as academics.
